TASMANIAN students studying life science, biotechnology and bio- engineering can enter the 2011 AusBiotech-GSK Student Excellence Awards.

The University of Tasmania's Vipul Agarwal was the state winner last year with his research into the pulp and paper industry.

The state winner will receive entry into the national final.

The national winner will be announced at the AusBiotech 2011 Conference in Adelaide in October.

The national winner receives $7000 to present their research to an international conference, and their principal supervisor receives a $2000 research grant.

Entries close September 12.
