Investors flock to South Australia @ Investment Summit

The AusBiotech Australasian Life Sciences Investment Summit (ALSIS), 2011, showcased some of the best local biotechnology companies. The summit brought international and Australian investors to South Australia's doorstep. As many as 36 companies and institutions — a mix of listed late-stage development, private companies with identified product opportunities and early-stage commercialization companies from research institutes and universities — made presentations at the summit. "If there were an Olympic Games for biotechnology, Australia would be in the medals list," says Dr Anna Lavelle, CEO of AusBiotech. "And this is, quite rightly, attracting increasing attention from investors, globally."
